

Overview

Benefit from our sweeping legal capabilities across the entire energy sector—from oil and gas to electricity generation, transmission and distribution—we have experience advising on a range of transactional and project work in the sector, including mergers, acquisitions, joint ventures, and project development and finance.

Our experience allows us to assist with the structuring, development, financing and operation of energy generation, distribution and transmission projects, including self-generation and renewable facilities. We also have significant experience in structuring and conducting due diligence for the acquisition of electricity-related assets, as well as in the negotiation of energy supply agreements.
